Hydrepathy in Germany.

The idea of curing diseases by the application and use of cold water is no novelty in medicine, bough it has but recently been reduced to a sys-18m. The establishment of M. Pressnitz at Grafemberg in Germany is the parent of many others now springing into life throughout Europe, and we hearthat the practice it recommends and follows has imitators in this Country.

Marvelous stories are told of the cures effected by this practice. The following is from a letter gansmitted by Captain Claridge to the Kentish

"Plain people become beauties by the observance of this rule, and the lame are enabled by it to rarise and walk.' "One young lady," says the Captain, "who went to Grafenberg with scrofula in her face and neck so bad as to render her quite an object, in nine months was so completely recovered as to be considered the beauty of the room." Another case was that of an officer who, in consequence of a wound, had his leg so withered that it was not thicker than his wrist. He shortly had his limb perfectly restored. The establishment of Mr. Priessnitz, is a very irregular strucure, having been built at different periods; but it has one noble room, which is used for meals and assemblies. At the public table, where there sat down about 300 persons, the Captain took occasion to remark the extraordinary flow of spirits which seemed to pervade the company, so different, he says, from what any one would expect in

The best description of the mode of treatment we have seen is embodied in the following letter from a literary gentleman, who has been for some time past in one of these establishments at Lauterburg, to his brother in this city, to whose kindness we are indebted for the privilege of laying it before our readers. He confesses that he is "rather worse at the moment of his writing than on the day of his arrival," although he "most faithfully follows up the prescribed course of treatment;" and to prove the truth of his statement he gives the following very interesting account of his course of life for each day :

LAUTERSERG, August 28th, 1842. Here in Lauterberg, all is in movement by 4 A. M, and at this hour the promenades exhibit their motley groups of men, women and children; and it must be wretched weather isdeed that will keep the invalids in their cheerless rooms. This accustoms us to atmospheric changes; for among the Harz mountains, in which this small town is located, are sometimes seen and felt the four seasons realized nearly in one day; and perhaps no where on earth can people, accustomed when at home to a civilized mode of life, be found who set weather at such defiance as these invalids. This arises from their confidence in the power of water and in our Doctor's consummate talent in immediately setting matters right if any cold or other sick ness should arise from the exposure, which, however, is very rarely the case when people are acgramed to the use of cold water.

At half-past three in the morning, my Bradewarter, or attendant, comes to disturb me in my "sweet dreamy slumbers," only-I shudder-to plunge me, warm from my bed, into excessively cold water of the almost icy degree of 18 Fahmakeit, where I am left to cool for the comfortable space of 5 or 10 minutes: and I should not wonder if, some winter's day, I am changed into an icicle, or step out of the bath, a complete lusus nature, in the form of a living petrifaction! Hurrying on my clothes I hasten to the promenade, where there is a Quelle, or fine spring of pure cold water, and commence an internal deluge by way of sharpening my appetite for the coming breakfast at half-past five. Our Doctor prescribes only as much water as the stomach can bear without inconvenience; less than 12 glasses a day would not be sufficient, and from that number we may drink up to 20 or 39. Walking about the promenade, drinking water, and complimenting each other upon our fresh morning looks constitute our amusement for the first hour and half of the day. After breakfasting upon our simple meal of bread butter and milk, we turn out again and disperse among the neighboring hills, which, as they are finely wooded, afford us the most agreeable skade. At half-past seven, my bady all in a glow from the mountain exercise, I return home, throw off my clothes, and am immediately enveloped in an immense blanket, laid upon my bed, bound and bandaged, hand and foot like a perfect mummy, pressed, wrapped and swaddled up between feather beds, sheets and blankets, where I usually remain for four hours, in a most anti-luxuriant position, extended upon my back. Smothered among such a prodigious paraphernalia of beading, you may readily suppose how soon the body begins to mell away under its influence. As soon as I am in full sweat. I remain in this delectable state of exhaustion for a couple of hours, sucking from a glass tube, at an interval of every 20 minutes, a glass of very cold water. At the expiration of my prescribed time for sweating, another cold water bath of 18 degrees temperature is again prepared, contiguous to my bed, into which, tout-a-coup, I am plunged, all reeking with sweat and, as it were, melting into broth: the shock is almost incredible though by no means so disagreeable as one might be apt to imagine. After kicking and splashing about for 5 or 10 minutes, like a duck in a pond I step out; and the effect of this sudden immersion is visibly perceived in the skin, which is as red as a cherry or a boiled lobster. Walking after a bath is at all times indispensable, and, fortunately, no place in the world is perhaps more diversified with natural and enchanting promenades than those that are met with in the neighborhood of this pret-

Once, and hitherto only once, have I had to undergo the ordeal of being swaddled up among wet bandages and wet skeets immediately on rising in the morning warm from my bed; and my English taste, not being exactly cultivated into an admiration of this chilly remedy, was strangely shocked with its application. It most effectually cured me of complaining that my skin was thick, morbid. and would not sweat; and I safely recommend it (if you can take a joke) to the practice of any of your acquaintance, should some fashionable, delicate and fastidious young lady or gentleman teaze you concerning this malady. could not produce its equal for improving, softening and embellishing the skin! Indeed, I would have torn them from me, as Hercules attempted to tear away the fatal shirt of the Centaur in which he was enveloped; but alas! I could not; for, similar to the dilemma of that renowned worthy, the more I tried to disengage myself, the tighter they stuck to me; so, like another Falstaff, I was obliged to submit upon "compulsion," and suffer the wet clothes, by the aid of my old friends the feather beds, &c., to dry upon my body, for which, however, I afterwards revenged myself by sweating most profusely. Capital remedy this, to teach one patience! I have heard of the beautiful figure of "Patience sitting on a monument;" but "Patience enveloped in a wet sheet," -O tempora! O mores!-is a most unclassical invention, and clearly belongs to modern times.

But perhaps the most severe application appertaining to "Cold Water Cure," so far as I have experienced it, is the being placed beneath a jet, called here a "Douche," pouring down upon one's 20 to 30 feet, in a thick stream of cold, icy water an inch-and-a-half in diameter. I receive the thundering application twice a day, a quarter of an hour each time: and I assure you that for the first few days my skin was literally bruised from the force of the fall, so that many black contusions a solemn duty." (this unmerciful pummeling is no jest I can assare you,) appeared in various parts of the body, and even to this day I continue to be marked, though the greater part of them have disappeared. Among the "douche" establishments (of which there are five or six distributed in the town and neighborhood, (are also copious shower baths, and jets or streams that issue from below. These douches or streams are of various dimensions, varying at their orifice from a half-an-inch to an inch-and-a-half in diameter-the patient being introduced to them

Each morning and afternoon is concluded with he recreation of a "sitz bad"-sitting bath-that is, being seated for half an hour in a tub of cold,

This centinued dressing and undressing, bathng, walking, &c. &c., occupies us pretty well the entire day; and though very troublesome, fatiguing and disagreeable at first, yet becomes, eventually, a matter of occupation and necessity. "Man," says a musty philosopher, " is a bundle of habits; the truth of which, I can aver, is duly known and maintained here in Lauterberg, where we habituate ourselves to capsize, overturn and demolish the doctrine of all past generations concerning the dire and fatal results of drinking and bathing in cold water, sleeping in wet sheets, &c. &c., while sweating and perspiring profusely!

We usually retire to bed at half-past eight in the vening; for if the operations of the cure are to e commenced, as is always the case, at four in he morning, it must be evident to all who reflect, that the patients ought to be in bed by nine. Each Wednesday and Sunday afternoons the Doctor allows us a recess; for he considers that the enjoyment of peace of mind by recreation, is very closely connected with a state of bedily health. On these lays, therefore, accompanied by our worthy Doctor and his amiable spouse, the whole company of ladies and gentlemen-about a hundred sinnersform a social pic-nic party and walk either to some listant wood, village, or run, &c., carrying our suppers, fruit, &c., with us, or else partaking of curds and whey, bread and butter, &c., at the village; the walk home being usually colivened by singing: the Germans, you know, are notorious in their passion for music and smoking; and it must be conceded that really in both they excel! Our stivities, you perceive, are as rural as the pic utesque and beautiful country in which we reside: and though it may unfortunately happen, that I hall never get cured of my complaint, yet I can never however forget the many pleasant hours and associations I have enjoyed here among the ever charming "Harz;" and these, as a faithful talisman, will, when I am in other and remote climes, recall to my memory the pleasures of this innocent period of my life.

P. S. The doctor has ordered me not only to resume again sweating in wet sheets-(does not this sound like a paradox ? it is however literally true)-but positively to sleep during the night with wet bandages around me! Confound our good doctor! I thought that wet sheets and my corpus had parted company forever, but it appears the cold intimacy is to be renewed. Truly this "cold water cure" is what I should term, in plain English, a genuine "horse-cure;" nevertheless, I will persevere to the end, for, as our Latinists say-FINIS coronat opus!

We are exceedingly pleased with the purpose of this new work, and highly gratified with the manner in which it is wrought out. The direction of the minds of the young, who are endeavoring to make men of themselves, is its aim; and it seems to be effected with a good degree of skill and effect. The selections are all judicious and all its articles are well adapted to its direct object. The motto it has chosen well indicates the general character of the magazine :

"Of all the discoveries which men need to make, the most important at the present moment, is that of the self-forming power treasured up in themselves. They little suspect its extent, as little as the savage, apprehends the energy which the mind is created to exert on the material world. back and members from a perpendicular hight of It transcends in importance all our power over outward nature. "Sargent's New Monthly Magazine" furnishes s with the following Translation and Correspondence, which is introduced by a letter from the venerable writer to Mr. McTavish, the British Consul at Baltimore, who had presented the volume of the Marquis referred to:

The Rt. Hon. the Marquis of Wellesley, Kingston House, Knightsbridge, England: WASHINGTON, U. S. A. Dec. 16, 1841. My Lord-Mr. McTavish has had the goodness to transmit to me your very flattering letter of the 21st of October last. I had already been ndebted to his kindness for a copy of the volume of the classical pastimes of your early youth, the elegant effusions of your mature age, and the precious reliques of your later days. Imperfectly versed as I am in the learned languages, obviously so familiar to you, and in which a large portion of the volume was composed, it is impossible for me to peruse them without discerning in them the evidence of a spirit elevated in my estimation far above all the dignities of human institution. I looked into every gem of the casket for the richness of the mine whence it had been been drawn; and I could not withhold my tribute of admiration at the lustre which it opened to my view. The lines upon Milton, perhaps from deep rooted sympathies which your lordship will easily appreciate, struck me with such forcible impression that I could not resist the temptation of attempting to render them in the language of Milten himself. The vindication of the great poet's meral fame from the prejudices of his most eminent biographer had to me a charm of more than poetical justice. Mr. McTavish has conferred upon me an additional obligation by communicating my lines to your lordship, and it is very gratifying to me that they were acceptable to you.

I cheerfully comply with the request for a copy f them in my own handwriting and under my own signature, and esteem it a valuable privilege to authorize the printing of them, with your Lordship's consent, associated in the same volume with the

John McTavish, Esq., Baltimore: WASHINGTON, Dec. 16, 1841. DEAR SIR: Conformably to the obliging permission in your letter of the 20th ult., I inclose herewith my answer to that of the Marquis of Wellesey, which I had recently the pleasure of receiving rem you, and with it, in compliance with his lordship's request, I add, in my own hand-writing, and certified by myself, a copy of that version of his beautiful Latin verses upon Milton, which he has honored with his approbation. There spoke to my heart, in that small number of the original lines, the spirit of England's glory in the language of Roman liberty. There is in them a concentrated volume of history at the most portentous period | Dry Goods. of modern times. It was not random praise or blame that I saw in Lord Wellesley's estimate of the character of Milton and of the age in which he lived. The rescue of the poet's moral sharacter from the shade which detraction had cast over it, claimed my gratitude; and desirous of conveying to you my sense of your kindness, in the present of the volume, I knew not how better to express it than in the attempt to interpret the voice of his lordship's Roman muse in the native Anglo-Saxon of the bard himself. With the hope that this effort would be acceptable to you, I did not anticipate that you would think it worthy of being communicated to Lord Wellesley, and little expected that he would confer upon it, by his indulgent reception of it, a value which I was far from attributing to it myself. His proposal to publish it in a new edition of his poems in company with his own original lines, is not only pleasing to me, but is esteemed as a precious privilege. As a token, after the lapse of two centuries, of compatriot reverence for the memory of Milton, the Latin lines of Lord Wellesley will not be forgotten. On whatseever Wellesley will not be forgotten. On whatsever gentlemen can have bettsmade of the following portion of the globe the language of England shall be the Mother tongue, and a trace of Roman liberty shall remain, they will be remembered and the constantly on hand, Fashionble Boots, &c., at the following the constantly on hand, and a constantly on hand, and sink deep into the souls of the virtuous and the free. To have been permitted to intertwine one sprig of olive in the chaplet of English oak and Roman laurel wreathed by the hand of Lord Wellesley round the brow of Milton, will, I hope and trust, be an honor prized by my children's children ages after all that is mortal of me shall have returned to the dust.

WONDERFUI EFFECTS OF SANDS'S SARSAPARILLA IN NORWICH.

Read the following from Mrs. Wm. Phillips, who has long resided at the Falls. The facts are well known to all the old residents in that part of the city.

MESSRS. A. B. SANDS & Co., SIRS: Most gratefully do I embrace this opportunity for stating to you the great relief I obtained from the use of your Sarsaparilla. I shall also be happy, through you, to publish to all who are afflicted, as I lately was, the account of my unexpected, and even for a long while despaired of cure. Mine is a painful story, for a long while despaired of cure. Mine is a painful story, and trying and sickening as is the narrative of it, for the sake of many who may be so surely relieved, I will briefly vet accurately state it.

sake of many who may be so surely reneved, I will stikely yet accurately state it.

Nineteen years ago last April a fit of sickness left me with an Ervsipeias eruption. Dropsical collections immediately took place over the entire surface of my body, causing such an enlargement that it was necessary to add a half yard to the size of my dresses around the waist. Next followed, upon my limbs, ulcers, painful beyond description. For years, both in summer and winter, the only mitigation of my suffering was found in pouring upon those parts cold water. From my limbs the pain extended over my whole body. There was literally for me no rest, by day or by night. Upon lying down these pains would shoot through my system, and compel me arise, and, for hours together, walk the house, so that I was almost entirely deprived of sleep. During this time the Erysipelas continued active, and the ulcers enlarged, and so deeply have those eaten, that for two and a half years they have been subject to and the ulcers enlarged, and so desply have these eaten, that for two and a half years they have been subject to bleeding. During these almost twenty years I have consulted many physicians. These have called my disease as it was attended with an obstinate cough, and a steady and active pain in my side—a dropsical consumption; and though they have been skilful practitioners, they were only able to afford my case a partial and temporary relief. I had many other difficulties to complicated to describe. I have also used many of the mediciness that have been recommended as intallible cures for this disease, yet these recommended as intallible cures for this disease, yet these all failed, and I was most emphatically growing worse. In this critical condition, given up by friends, and expecting for oyself, relief only in death, I was by the timely interposition of a kind Providence, furnished with your, to me, invaluable Sorsaparilla. A single bottle gave me an assimance of health, which for twenty years I had not once telt. Upon taking the second, my enlargement diminished, and in twelve days from the 5th October, when I commenced taking your Sarsaparilla, I was able to enjoy sleep andrest, by night, as refreshing as any I ever enjoyed when in perfect health. Besides, I was, in this short time, relieved from all those excrutiating and unalleviated pains that had afflicted my days, as well as robbed me of my night's repose. The ulcers upon my limbs are healed, the Erysipeias cured, and my size reduced nearly to my former measure.

Thus much do I feel it a privilege to testify to the effi caey of your health-restoring Sarsaparilla. A thousand thanks, sirs, from one whose comfort and whose hope of future health are due, under God, to your instrumentality.

MESSRS. SANDS—GENTLEMEN: If you alone were concerned in the present statement, the great inducement for making it would be removed; for of course no testimony can strengthen your own convictions in relation to the value and efficiency of your Sarsaparilla, which has already proved such a blessing to the many hundreds who have used it. But I have looked upon the world encircling in its arms thousands bowed down with sufferings similar to my own, who would gladly hasten to the same source that restored my health, it they were persuaded they would meet with the same happy results. Therefore, gentlemen, it is that those thousands may be convinced, and profit by furir conviction as I have done, that induces me to state before the world a period of suitering such as few have known, and the permanent relief I received from your Sarsaparilla. But how shall I begin, or how describe those exeruciating agonies that seized upon my frame? Early in the month of June, 1940, I was first attacked with rheumatism, caused, I have reason to believe, by a severe coid contracted while nursing one of my children, who was then this preparation. NEW-YORK, Oct. 19, 1842. ontracted while nursing one of my children, who was then contracted while nursing one of my children, who was then very ili.

My suffering soon became intense, everywhere I seemed diseased. For five months I was unable to walk, and for six weeks did not lie upon a bed, but was obliged to remain in a sitting posture, that being less agonizing than any other. My whole body was so sore and racked with pain that the slightest touch caused inexpressible distress. For a period of many months I did not sleep but two nights, and the only rest I obtained was during the day, when nature became exhausted and I fell into a slumber, from which I was soon awakened by the beating and throbbing pain. My limbs were swollen and my shoulders drawn out of place, and altogether I was rendered entirely helpless. I obtained the best medical advice, but without receiving any permanent relief. The rheumatism being combined with a swelling and painful affection of the joints, rendered it still worse. Tumors formed under the skin, round my head, which caused burning and lanciating pains similar to scrofula of the glands.

My groans at night caused the watchman to step in the street as he passed by; and when many of my friends residing in Poughkeepsie last visited me, they bid me farewell, as they then thought for ever; and once the family assembled in the room to watch the last spark of life go out. well, as they then thought for ever; and once the family assembled in the room to watch the last spark of life go out. But the fame of life again glared up within me; and soon after this I heard of your Sarsaparilla, and determined to try it; and behold the result. After taking one bottle the pain left the, and I was able to walk and sleep. I could scarcely realize the transition—so sudden, so complete. After using four or five bottles, I was entirely cured. And are you alone, gentlemen, concerned to know it? I think not; and this language is too mild for the occasion. For I know that the medicine that possesses the power to cure me is capable of conferring the same blessing upon thousands of others suffering—perhaps dying; therefore, these are all concerned to know that they can be cured. In fact, all are concerned in the discovery of any thing that tends to promote the happiness of the human race; for we are social beings, and cannot suffer alone. Persons may doubt this statement if they will, and go on and suffer and die. I have discharged a duty which I felt membent upon me in making it known for the benefit of those who choose to believe it. And when I look into the past—upon those solitary days and sleepless nights—I thank God that I am as I am. And I thank you, gentlemen, that you have made science minister nnto our infirmities, and I, for one, will proclaim the fact.
